

*Since 1968, I'm actualizing an art concept that is not linear but cyclic and spiral.
In the process, art has revealed itself to be research and a science of the subjective.
Alfred Bast*

With the translation of Alfred Bast's catalogue "Light Ground" into English, 50 years of the essence of his works will be made available to an English-speaking audience.

We consider this broadening step as a contribution to a worldwide, somewhat quite movement, which transcends religion, science, art and commerce within - toward one's own potentials - so as to focus on the original, freely creative, intelligent life force pulsating in each cell.

Energetic impulses and inspirations emerge from this inner place, where a sense of responsibility for the whole is the natural state. This expresses itself in streaming movements, individual form, beauty, mindful perception and consciousness of being.

Such a posture will necessarily be unbiased, because it relates to the whole and to the free, creative dialogue of the opposites.
